

I am appalled at the actions of the FCC in allowing the ultimate consolidation of all news services in any given area under a single ownership. This unholy monopoly will drown out dissent and the necessary discussion and examination that participatory democracy requires. The present trend to submit news departments to the same "bottom line" mentality of any other "business" has eliminated anything remotely resembling journalistic integrity. Any further gutting of the law will be yet another nail in the coffin and you will be the undertaker to Truth.
